"Did any one ever realize the power of a smile," said Miss Gladys Brockwell, the famous William Fox star who is shortly to be seen in "Conscience," an interesting allegorical photodrama. "A smile can cause so many complications that it is dreadful to conjure them up in your mind."

"For the gaining of a woman's smile a man would give up everything he valued most in the world. Kingdoms have been won and lost through the medium of a woman's smile. Men have gone to an heroic death just to gain the smile of the woman he loved."

"But on the other hand," continued the philosophical Miss Brockwell, "a smile can cover and redeem the fortunes that often betray a person's real feelings. In many instances a smile of extreme sweetness may be hiding an anger that would perhaps be fatal to any plans the person had in mind, but this same smile would immediately disarm his very frankness."

Hipp Vaudeville Bill Good.

The three vaudeville acts playing at the Hippodrome the last half of the week are all of excellent calibre. The opening act Grant and sister has probably never had its equal on any program at this house in one feature at least, and that is the sensational feat of strength displayed by Mr. Grant. There are no trick stunts. Every feat is a legitimate showing of physical strength, mathematical calculations and long practice. It calls for extraordinary physical exertion and the Samsonian propensities of this performer seem without bounds.

Adeline Carr portrays a type of commedienne of which the vaudeville stage experiences a scarcity. We can recall a dozen or more celebrities of a score of years ago who set the pace for this sort of comedy, but in the present rag time era it is a scarce article. Her monologue numbers had a touch of novelty and were rendered in good voice. Besides, she is good to look at and has a pleasing stage presence. The third act was originally scheduled to contain three people, but one of the number was taken away in the selective draft. Messrs. Raines and Goodrich, the remaining members of the trio which was widely known as "Darned Good and Funny" put on a skit of exceptional merit. It is undoubtedly a big time act and the audience showed appreciation by encoring liberally. The comedy of Mr. Raines is a scream. In the make-up of a country lad he puts over some witty sayings without the extreme caricature to which most "rube" acts go. Whether the act suffers by the loss of the third member is not apparent. Suffice to say that the act is good and besides the comedy both actors possess and voices. The three acts will be continued tonight and tomorrow.

Conquest Program at Nelson.

The collection of educational features in the seventh Conquest Picture program proves to be the best group that Edison has placed in one release. These include "Turning Out Silver Bullets," "Young Salts," and "The Holy Land." "Turning Out Silver Bullets" is made the title of this one thousand feet because it was a phrase used by a well-known man in describing the making of money by the United States and its powerful use.

away in bugs. Each copy of the camera and it shows the rapid work and the modern machinery utilized. The feature was photographed under the sanction of the United States Treasury Department.

"Young Salts" is a review of the work and play at the Culver Military Academy, where a large number of young men are trained in naval tactics as well as general education. Remarkable exhibition of skill in all lines of athletics are shown, and the maneuvers and drills are picturesque. It will be strange if this picture does not inspire every boy the desire to attend some military school. The remaining half of the reel contains beautiful scenes of the Holy Land.

The longer of the two story pictures, which is in three reels and called "T. Haviland Hicks, Freshman," is purely a boys' story, but it will not be adults. It depicts the rivalry between the freshmen and the sophomores in a small college and introduces us to the clever and humorous leader of the freshmen, T. Haviland Hicks, who gets the best of the rival class at every turn. Hicks is well played by Raymond McKee, and the role of his chum is so well portrayed by James Turbell that he becomes as prominent as the featured member of the cast. The two-reel story, "Gallagher," has been adapted from a tale by Richard Harding Davis, and it recounts the thrilling experience of a young chap employed in a newspaper office, who realizes his life's ambition to follow in the footsteps of Sherlock Holmes, when he is instrumental in capturing a criminal wanted by the police for murder, and with a price on his head. The role of the youth is capably handled by Andy Clark.

Metro Feature at Princess.

"Miss Robinson Crusoe," a five act Metro wonderplay is the booking at the Princess for today and tomorrow. Emmy Wehlen is the star. The story is one of intrigue, love and adventure and is screened with usual Metro exactness. The locations are divided between the Thousand Islands and New York city.

Howe Pictures Tomorrow.

The new Howe pictures which come to the Grand Saturday are replete with thrills and patriotic purposes for it takes spectators aboard Uncle Sam's fleet "Somewhere in the

Miss Marie Funk, German girl of Ithaca, N. Y., was the chief witness in the trial which has just resulted in the conviction of Captain May V. Thierichsen, former commander of the interned German sea raider Prinz Eitel Friedrich, of violation of the Mann white slave act. Captain Thierichsen was charged with taking Miss Funk from Ithaca to Philadelphia for improper purposes.

lantic" and imparts the pulse-beat of the complex life that throbs through every fiber of our gigantic fighting machines. The Secretary of the Navy, Mr. Daniels, granted special permission to Mr. Howe to produce this film in order to inform the public what tremendous strides have been made in our mighty naval units within the past few months.

This film reproduction is the Navy's answer to the landman's query "What do you do?" and the answer is made by the film in the clearest and most decisive way. One portion also shows the rigorous training enforced at the U. S. Naval Academy at Annapolis, Maryland, in qualifying the midshipmen to become high officers in the Navy.

Another feature depicts the thrilling episodes of broncho-breaking contests and a ride over the Cascade Mountains in Washington via the Great Northern Railway. Still another film reveals an imaginary battle in the air between a Zeppelin and a British airman over London which ends in the total destruction of the former. Climbing dizzy Alpine heights is another subject with thrills.

The serious subjects are humorously satirized by animated cartoons by Howe's artists.

Comedy Drama at Dixie.

"The Lady of the Photograph," at the Dixie today is a comedy-drama that comes very nearly being farce, inasmuch as the central male character is so broadly drawn and the plot so very obvious that it seems to be intentional burlesque. The role of Ferdy Latimer is a "Bah Jove" characterization to an extreme, and the young gentleman who plays it, Raymond McKee, never for a minute allows the audience to forget the silly ass quality.

ties of the benighted Englishman. The story revolves around the career of Ferdy after his father has died and left him penniless, bestowing the family title and money on a brother. He comes to America with the hope of making an easy fortune, but he finds the task considerably harder than he expected, and in desperation he agrees to attempt the social and love affair promotion of a young man of the nouveau riche, but in a disguise.

It happens that the girl the rich bouncer wishes to marry had captivated Ferdy some time before and a mild affair between them had resulted. When the young man was denounced as an imposter, it develops that his family's solicitors had been looking for him for a long time to inform him that his brother had been killed in the war and that he had succeeded to the title and the estate. Everybody lives happily ever after.

"CLOSE-UPS"

—Little things are not necessarily the easiest things accomplished in moving picture producing. For instance, it required more than a week of vigorous search to find a four-leaf clover for use in Taylor Holmes' current Essanay picture, "Fools for Luck."

—Madame Olga Petrova is planning to make a brief appearance on the legitimate stage this season at one of the smaller and more intimate type of metropolitan theatres like the Princess or the Booth. These recitals will be held on afternoons other than regular matinee days and not in any way interfere with Petrova's activities in producing Petrova pictures.

—For the big fight scene in "Her Country's Call," the American Film production in which Mary Miles Minter stars, a town two blocks long was built. Several hundred extras were hired for this scene, in which the town is attacked by border raiders, and in which Miss Minter first shoots a man who insults the flag and then hops aboard a large horse and gallops down the road to warn the town.

—Musical comedy will be resumed at the Hippodrome next week. "The Belle Isle Girls" is the scheduled attraction.

double-jointed vocal cords, enabling him to talk while breathing in as well as when breathing out. This made him the highest paid auctioneer in the state, but he has doubled this salary with a sketch in which he impersonates two salesgirls at once.

HOME FOLKS TESTIFY

There are so many people in Fairmont and in every city, town and hamlet in West Virginia who have been benefited by Dr. Pierce's medicines that it is nothing new to see their testimony in print.

Mrs. Annie Lewellyn, 215 Newton street, this city, says: "I developed a severe case of woman's weakness. I suffered with pains in the back and side, extending downward. This caused me to become nervous and weak and all run-down in health. I began taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and it has cured me."

MRS. ANNIE LEWELLYN.

One nice thing about Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription it contains no alcohol or narcotic nor any harmful ingredient. Put up in liquid and tablets and sold by druggists. If not obtainable, send $1.00 to Dr. Pierce, Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., and he will mail a large package of tablets.

Mrs. A. A. Atka, 200 Grafton street, this city, says: "Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription helped me when I most needed help and I am glad to recommend it. When I was going through middle age I became all run-down, weak and nervous, could not sleep, had severe pains in my back and hips so I could hardly walk. I took six bottles of the 'Favorite Prescription' and it brought me through this critical period in a good, strong, healthy condition. Women who are going through this critical time should not suffer, but take 'Favorite Prescription'."
